

About the Artist...

Sally L. Saylor

Sally L. Saylor has lived in North Carolina for the past 17 years, where she currently lives with her husband and two sons. Born and raised in Maine, she's always been fascinated with handmade craftsmanship and curious about the construction of the pieces. She's passionate about the art that she creates, and focuses her talents mainly on painting realism and colorful creations.

Not only is Sally highly skilled in painting, she's extremely gifted in the art of pottery turning. She individually creates and hand turns each unique piece of pottery and fires it in her studio kiln.

Many of Sally's creations and works of art are custom crafted and can be found all over the world. Once each design is fully completed, Sally signs every piece with her signature of approval.
